

Parent Representative Needed.

Under the Children's Services Act (CSA), parent representatives serve as members of interagency Family Assessment and Planning Teams (FAPT) and Community Policy and Management Teams (CPMT). In these roles, parents add value to the planning and policy making process by bringing ideas and viewpoints from a parent's/family's perspective. When CSA became law in 1993, Virginia mandated parent representation on teams as part of the interagency planning process. Research demonstrates that children and families have a higher rate of success when parents are involved in the planning and delivery of services. Through the addition of parent representatives, team efforts have been strengthened and child and family successes have increased. Parent representatives provide a unique perspective in creating systems of care for children and their families. Serving as valuable supporters of other parents, parent representatives can be extremely helpful when they have experienced the FAPT process. This first-hand knowledge of the system makes them integral to the policy planning and decision making process.
